History

#1 - 2019-06-24 15:12 - okurz

- Subject changed from openQA travis CI tests fail on master in t/ui/26-jobs_restart.t to [sporadic] openQA travis CI tests fail on master in t/ui/26-jobs_restart.t

Using <https://github.com/os-autoinst/openQA/pull/2131/>

I ran

for i in {001..100} ;do echo "### $i" && make PROVE_ARGS=t/ui/26-jobs_restart.t test-with-database || break ;
done

and could not reproduce the problem locally. Could be only reproducible in the potentially slower travis CI environment or only in the openSUSE Leap 42.3 container environment or only when running more runs.

#2 - 2019-07-01 13:54 - okurz

happened again in <https://travis-ci.org/os-autoinst/openQA/jobs/552718974#L642>

#3 - 2019-11-19 11:32 - okurz

- Subject changed from [sporadic] openQA travis CI tests fail on master in t/ui/26-jobs_restart.t to [sporadic] openQA CI tests fail on master in flaky/unstable t/ui/26-jobs_restart.t

- Status changed from New to Feedback

- Assignee set to okurz

- Target version set to Current Sprint

I already have a PR trying to reproduce flaky tests more reliably, see <https://github.com/os-autoinst/openQA/pull/2496>

#4 - 2020-01-24 09:23 - okurz

I rebased my branches and pushed an update to <https://github.com/os-autoinst/openQA/pull/2496> . We can see how tests currently fare.

Extracted a part into <https://github.com/os-autoinst/openQA/pull/2693> to have the "unstable" tests covered which is actually what this ticket is about. Rest is about scheduler- and other full-stack test.

#9 - 2020-02-03 09:25 - cdywan

gh#2693 got merged

#10 - 2020-02-03 14:34 - okurz

right. So with this we currently do not have any tests in "unstable_tests.txt" anymore, rest is for full stack tests in other tickets.
